MISSION

Today's first reading from Isaiah was occasioned by the return of the Jewish people from exile. The prophet visualizes the Holy City as a mother welcoming her children home. The people may now look forward to prosperity and comfort. In this post-Pentecostal season, the Church attributes this sense of fulfillment to the Holy Spirit.

Paul, on the other hand, speaks of "the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." It is the single thing of which he will boast, for it is the means by which we are re-created. The comfort and prosperity promised in the first reading are here transformed by a deepening of the Christian paradox.

Luke's Gospel describes the calling and the mission of "seventy-two others," who are commissioned to bring in the "harvest." The number is symbolic, since according to Jewish tradition the number of nations in the world is seventy-two. This then is a universal mission, a catholic mission to all the world.

MISIÓN

La primera lectura de hoy, tomada de Isaías, fue motivada por el retorno del pueblo judío del exilio. El profeta visualiza la Ciudad Santa como una madre que da la bienvenida a sus hijos que regresan al hogar. El pueblo puede ahora esperar prosperidad y comodidad. En este tiempo después de Pentecostés, la Iglesia atribuye este sentimiento de satisfacción al Espíritu Santo.

Pablo, por otro lado, habla de "la cruz de nuestro Señor Jesucristo". Es la única cosa de que él se enorgullece porque es el medio por el cual somos re-creados. La comodidad y la prosperidad prometidas en la primera lectura se transforman aquí al profundizar una paradoja cristiana.

El Evangelio de Lucas describe el llamado a la misión de "otros setenta y dos", que son enviados a recoger la "cosecha". El número es simbólico, pues según la tradición judía, el número de naciones en el mundo es setenta y dos. Esta, entonces, es una misión universal, una misión católica para todo el mundo.

Defense of Marriage Act Struck Down, June 26, 2013

As you heard on the news last Tuesday, the Supreme Court struck down the federal Defense of Marriage Act that defines marriage as between one man and one woman.

Opposition to gay marriage is often framed by the secular media as discrimination toward homosexual persons. The charge is often made that people who oppose gay marriage are homophobic and bigoted. There are many issues that I can't address in this homily, such as the origin of same-sex attraction. What I want to do is briefly to address two different but related issues. The first has to do with homosexual persons, and the second has to do with the nature of marriage. Regarding the first question, the Catechism of the Catholic Church says the following:

“Homosexual persons do not choose their homosexual condition; for most of them it is a trial. They must be accepted with respect, compassion, and sensitivity. Every sign of unjust discrimination in their regard should be avoided. These persons are called to fulfill God's will in their lives and, if they are Christians, to unite to the sacrifice of the Lord's Cross the difficulties they may encounter from their condition. (CCC 2358)

Homosexual persons are called to chastity. By the virtues of self-mastery that teach them inner freedom, . . . by the support of healthy friendship, prayer and sacramental grace, they can and should gradually and resolutely [live a holy life]. (CCC 2359)

One conclusion from these passages from the Catechism is that all people deserve respect and dignity, and any bigotry against homosexual persons is sinful.

With regard to the second question, the Catechism has a long section on marriage, beginning with:

The matrimonial covenant, by which a man and a woman establish between themselves a partnership of the whole of life, is by its nature ordered toward the good of the spouses and the procreation and education of offspring; this covenant between baptized persons has been raised by Christ the Lord to the dignity of a sacrament. (CCC 1601)

The intimate community of life and love which constitutes the married state has been established by the Creator and endowed by him with its own proper laws. . . . God himself is the author of marriage. The vocation to marriage is written in the very nature of man and woman as they came from the hand of the Creator. (CCC 1603)

The Christian tradition, and all other world religions, see marriage as the foundation of society because it is by the procreation and education of children that society continues generation after generation. Every child wants a mother and a father. Beyond this natural understanding of marriage, Jesus declares that God is the one who unites a man and woman in marriage.

In response to the Supreme Court striking down the Defense of Marriage Act, here is a statement from Cardinal Timothy M. Dolan of New York, president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Archbishop Salvatore J. Cordileone of San Francisco: "The court got it wrong. The federal government ought to respect the truth that marriage is the union of one man and one woman, even where states fail to do so. . . . The common good of all, especially our children, depends upon a society that strives to uphold the unique meaning of marriage: one man, one woman, for life."
