Happy Ascension Sunday! Today we celebrate the Ascension of our Lord Jesus into Heaven. Traditionally this Feast Day is celebrated 40 days after our Lord's resurrection but as is the practice in many parts of the world, we, with the permission of the local bishop, transfer the Feast Day to Sunday.

As we continue to move forward in our faith life as a Catholic parish we are happy to celebrate over the next few weekends the First Holy Communion of many members of our parish community. Once more, it will be different and the need for safety and health precautions do not allow us to fully invite all the community into these wonderful days of blessing...but your prayers are vital and important for our children and their families as they take this important and life giving step in their faith journey.

If you child was scheduled to receive his or her First Holy Communion last year and hasn't please contact the catechetical office to schedule a date. (Continued on page 5...)

¡Feliz Domingo de la Ascensión! Hoy celebramos la Ascensión de nuestro Señor Jesús al Cielo. Tradicionalmente, esta fiesta se celebra 40 días después de la resurrección de nuestro Señor, pero como es la práctica en muchas partes

del mundo, nosotros, con el permiso del obispo local, transferimos la fiesta al domingo.

Mientras que continuamos avanzando en nuestra vida de fe como parroquia católica, estamos felices de celebrar durante los próximos fines de semana la Primera Comunión de muchos miembros de nuestra comunidad parroquial. Una vez más, será diferente y la necesidad de tomar precauciones de seguridad y salud no nos permite invitar completamente a toda la comunidad a estos maravillosos días de bendición ... pero sus oraciones son vitales e importantes para nuestros niños y sus familias, ya que toman este importante y vivificante paso en su camino de fe.

Si su hijo estaba programado para recibir su Primera Comunión el año pasado y no lo ha hecho, comuníquese con la oficina de catequesis para programar una fecha. (Continúa en la página 5...)

Beginning this week, Sunday afternoon the 16th, I will be taking a 6 day silent retreat. I had scheduled this before I was asked to change assignments to the new parish, but it comes as a needed time of prayer, reconciliation and seeking peace in my heart. This is one of the ways I care for my spiritual, mental and physical well being. We have been talking this month about the need to recognize the caring for our mental health.

The California Bishops, in their Document "Hope and Healing" share these important insights in the connection of our spiritual and mental health. "Some Christians harbor suspicions about psychiatry or clinical psychology and question their compatibility with the Catholic faith. Discernment is necessary since not all psychological approaches claiming to be "scientific" are in fact supported by sound evidence. However, good science that recognizes the life and dignity of people and the Catholic faith are never at odds. Medical science has discovered many useful treatments to help those with mental illness, and Catholics should welcome and make use of these—including medications, psychotherapy and other medical interventions.

At the same time, we cannot neglect the role of pastoral care and spiritual direction. The sacramental life of the Church, especially the frequent reception of the Eucharist, the Sacrament of the Sick, and the Sacrament of Reconciliation, provide grace and spiritual strength to all who receive them, and especially to those who suffer mentally or physically. Indeed, there is a growing body of medical research that demonstrates the health benefits of practices like prayer and meditation, religious worship, active participation in faith-based activities, groups and communities, and cultivating Christian virtues like gratitude and forgiveness. These spiritual practices—while they do not entirely prevent or cure mental illness—can reduce the risk of mental health problems and can assist in recovery."

God Bless, Fr. Mark

(Notas del Párroco, de la pagina 1)

A partir de esta semana, el domingo 16 por la tarde, estaré participando en un retiro en silencio por 6 días. Había programado esto antes de que me pidieran que cambiara a la nueva parroquia, pero llega a buen momento necesario de oración, reconciliación y búsqueda de paz en mi corazón. Esta es una de las formas en que me preocupo por mi bienestar espiritual, mental y físico. Este mes hemos estado hablando de la necesidad de reconocer el cuidado de nuestra salud mental.

Los obispos de California, en su documento "Esperanza y sanación", comparten estas ideas importantes sobre la conexión de nuestra salud espiritual y mental. "Algunos cristianos albergan sospechas sobre la psiquiatría o la psicología clínica y cuestionan su compatibilidad con la fe católica. El discernimiento es necesario ya que no todos los enfoques psicológicos que dicen ser "científicos" están respaldados por pruebas sólidas. Sin embargo, la buena ciencia que reconoce la vida y la dignidad de las personas y la fe católica nunca están reñidas. La ciencia médica ha descubierto muchos tratamientos útiles para ayudar a las personas con enfermedades mentales, y los católicos deben acogerlos y utilizarlos, incluyendo los medicamentos, psicoterapia y otras intervenciones médicas.

Al mismo tiempo, no podemos descuidar el papel pastoral y la dirección espiritual. La vida sacramental de la Iglesia, especialmente la recepción frecuente de la Eucaristía, el Sacramento de los Enfermos y el Sacramento de la Reconciliación, brindan gracia y fuerza espiritual a todos los que los reciben, y especialmente a los que sufren mentalmente o físicamente. De hecho, existe un creciente cuerpo de investigación médica que demuestra los beneficios para la salud de prácticas como la oración y la meditación, el culto religioso, la participación activa en actividades, grupos y comunidades basados en la fe, y el cultivo de virtudes cristianas como la gratitud y el perdón. Estas prácticas espirituales, aunque no previenen ni curan por completo las enfermedades mentales, pueden reducir el riesgo de problemas de salud mental y pueden ayudar en la recuperación".
